

Meridian completes NOW Foods office renovation

March 07, 2013 | Staff Writer |

Meridian Design Build has completed work on a 38,710-square-foot office renovation for NOW Foods in Bloomingdale. The company recently moved 140 employees to a newly acquired office building at 244 Knollwood Drive to accommodate laboratory and manufacturing expansions within their existing production facility.

The fast track renovation included demolition and office reconfiguration work on the two upper floors of the four-story building. A modern lunchroom was created and water bottle filling stations were also installed with sustainability and employee convenience in mind.

Bob Kolcz, senior project manager, and Greg Suthers, superintendent, coordinated construction efforts for Meridian. Heitman Architects Inc. provided architectural services.
